Building profiles and targeting communications

We use profiling techniques to ensure communications are relevant and timely.

Profiling our supporters in this way, also allows us to target our resources effectively, it allows us to understand the background of the people who support us and helps us to make appropriate requests to supporters who may be able and willing to give more than they already do. Importantly, it enables us to raise more funds, sooner, and more cost-effectively, than we otherwise would. Such information could be for example, socio-demographic and lifestyle information and information about previous donations you have made.

Depending on your settings or the privacy policies for social media and messaging services like Facebook, WhatsApp or Twitter, you might give us permission to access information from those accounts or services.

We may also obtain information about you where it is publicly available and found in places such as Companies House, Land Registry website and information that is published in articles and newspapers.

To understand how we use information about the communications devices you use, such as IP address (the location of the computer on the internet) and cookies, please see 'How we use cookies' section.

In order to create a profile for you, we (or our trusted service providers) may use the information which you give us and which we collect from external resources, including information that is publicly available about you. This sort of profiling can include us using information such as your age, where you live, your job, directorships, your financial circumstances, networks and any previous donations you have made, to assess how likely it is that you would be interested in donating to us and the level of donation that you may be able to give.

We may also use this information to help us determine whether and in what ways you might be interested in getting involved in our other fundraising activities. You can let us know if you prefer us not to profile you in this way by emailing fundraising@marthatrust.org.uk or call 01304 610448 or writing to our Data Protection Compliance Officer at Martha Trust, Homestead Lane, Hacklinge, Deal, Kent, CT14 0PG

Who do we share your information with?
